

Uniglobe Flight Tracking

Dramatic upgrades to travel effectiveness and productivity

An airline ticket, no matter how affordable, is money wasted if the employee fails to arrive on time for the meeting. Missed opportunities, employee inconvenience, and unanticipated travel expenses need to be measured and managed as part of the total trip cost. In these times of declining airline performance and high load factors, Uniglobe Travel recognizes that while we cannot prevent travel problems all together, we can certainly offer the industry's most innovative tools to help minimize your trouble and to maximize the value from every travel dollar you spend.

You wouldn't send your employees into a business appointment without the right tools, and Uniglobe Travel can offer them the best chance of getting there.

Traveller: Sam travels 8-days a month

Business travel is hard enough, particularly these days. Sam appreciates that his company and Uniglobe Travel provide the best mobile flight intelligence to minimize his inconvenience. He values the pre-departure email confirming his flight status before he leaves home. He still talks about the time he made his flight because he got an early alert of a terminal change, even when the airport displays had the wrong data.

Travel Coordinator: Mary manages 500 travellers

Mary used to hate these days, every time the phone would ring, it would be another crisis without a fix. Now, Mary is confident because she knows that all her travellers are in good hands with Uniglobe Flight Tracking. Mary receives advanced notification when one of her company's employees will be running late or will miss a connection. Now she has time to notify her business contacts of a change in meeting time, the hotel check-in time, and the transportation company to change its pickup time, and her employees of the changes in the trip.